The Camel's Nose in the Tent

On a cold night a man slept in his tent while his camel stood outside. As the night air got colder, the camel stuck his nose inside the tent and said, “My nose is getting cold out here in the night air. May I put my nose inside your tent?”

The man replied, “Yes. Please warm yourself.” The man then rolled over and went back to sleep.

A short time later, the man felt the camel nudge him and heard, “My front legs are cold too. May I put my front legs inside your tent?”

The man replied, “Yes. Please warm yourself.” Then he rolled over and went back to sleep.

Before long the camel woke the man again, saying, “My back legs are cold too. May I sleep inside the tent with you?”

The man moved into the corner and replied,
“Yes, yes. Lie down here.”

The man felt crowded as he went back to sleep.
When he woke in the morning, he was outside in the cold and the camel had the tent all to himself.
